OPTIONAL CME ACTIVITIES

“APPLYING NEWER BIOLOGIC THERAPIES TO IMPROVE OUTCOMES IN PATIENTS WITH MODERATE-TO-SEVERE PSORIASIS”

This optional, free CME activity will be offered on Friday, July 7, immediately following the NCDA welcome reception, from 6:45-8:00pm. Dinner will be provided (registered physicians, students and mid-level providers only).

This live CME activity will focus on educating healthcare providers on the application of newer biologic therapies involved in the management of psoriasis with the goal of presenting the most beneficial and applicable information to clinical practice. The development of therapies that target underlying autoimmune inflammatory processes has changed treatment approaches in psoriatic diseases, and effective biologic agents have become available or are in advanced clinical development. The expert faculty will update learners on the immunopathology of biologic therapeutics for psoriasis, and provide an analysis of clinical trials of current and emerging therapies. Learners will be able to better formulate personalized treatment plans that apply biologic therapeutics for patients with moderate-to-severe psoriasis. To register, contact cbenedek@academiccme.com or (610) 687-3300.

“NOVEL INSIGHTS IN ATOPIC DERMATITIS: PATHWAYS, BIOMARKERS, AND PHENOTYPES FOR A TARGETED APPROACH”

This optional, free CME activity will be offered on Saturday, July 8, immediately following the NCDA program, from 12:00-1:30pm. Lunch will be provided (registered physicians, students and mid-level providers only).

This live CME activity will help dermatologists and allergists become more familiar with new treatment options for AD, and will discuss how emerging biomarkers in AD have the potential to enhance individualization of therapy by targeting a patient’s specific biological signatures, and help predict and monitor therapeutic response. Clinicians will be provided with strategies to educate their patients, facilitate acceptance of therapies, promote self-management, achieve disease control and ultimately prevent patients from progressing along the atopic march. Jointly provided by PCMA and Rockpointe. To register, go to www.rockpointe.com/atopicderm.

(These programs are not part of the Southern Regional AHEC-accredited NCDA program.)
