The Future Clinician Leaders Program is a year-long leadership development program for students in health professions training programs in North Carolina. Students from medical, physician assistant, pharmacy, and advanced practice nursing programs participate in a one-year program that includes 3 in-person half-day meetings typically on weekends and 3 virtual one-hour webinars. Students also complete a capstone project which culminates in the writing of a white paper about a major health policy issue facing healthcare in the state of North Carolina.

Critical to the success of students in this program is the support of their local institution to ensure that participation in the program will not impede their academic performance.
